Summary

This exercise is in furtherance of the “business-led” approach of N2Africa Phase II, and the strong focus on “youth engagement for profitable agribusiness and sustainable livelihood” in the Borno State project. The report captures the enterprise activities of the targeted youth with the progress made so far on account of the intervention. This includes a strategic look into the key elements of the milestone in the twilight of the project.

To date, a total of 300 youth (42 percent female) have been directly trained and reoriented to embrace agriculture and agribusiness as an income-generating activity. The youth have been empowered (equipped with agripreneurship skills and starter packs), and are currently engaged in various agricultural value chain activities under the N2Africa project. Consequently 300 individual businesses and four cooperative business groups have been established along the grain legume value chain. All the enterprises and business clusters are fully registered with the appropriate (national/state) regulatory agencies.

Accordingly, the youth agripreneurs, through their business activities, have created a total of 2293 direct and downstream job opportunities for other youth/women in the value chain, ranging from input supply to production, processing, and marketing activities around crop and livestock production activities. Specific progress was made in the following areas:

- 1) A total of 153 direct job opportunities have been created among graduates and 147 for school leavers (usually the “hard-to-reach” category of youth), and 1993 downstream (permanent and casual) jobs in the grain legume value chain.
- 2) There has been a remarkable impact on labor-saving farm activities and women participation through the introduction of the Spray Service Provider (SSP) concept, and consequent provision of services particularly for women who constitute about 40 percent of the farmers reached in the project area.
- 3) A major industrial (processor) output market mandate (Grand Cereals and Oil Mills Limited [GCOML]) has been secured to mop up products while a sustainable input/output supply market is being institutionalized through the ongoing CBN Anchor Borrowers Programme (ABP) in the project area.
- 4) Three value chain-based cooperative associations have been established with an apex coordinating union.
- 5) About 77 million naira (US$323,000) has been injected into the local markets/economy in business support package for the youth beneficiaries with great multiplier effects for individuals and households in the project area.
- 6) Injected grants have been multiplied to the tune of about 150,000 million Naira in current investments value, representing liquid cash, savings, and physical assets within a period of three to 24 months of business activities.
- 7) There has been a gradual accumulation of assets such as farmland, livestock structures and equipment, grain processing mills, tricycles, and shops/stores, and indeed a growing business profile that can eventually stand as acceptable collateral for access to credit from financial institutions, which has hitherto been difficult.
- 8) Aside other critical staple foodstuffs like leaf and fruit vegetables, fish, and livestock products produced, about 364,300 kg of grain legumes and cereals (cowpea, groundnut, maize, rice, sorghum, and soybean) were produced and/or traded during the 2017 season, with significant impact on the inter-state and international grain markets (Biu, Wandali/Kwaya Kusar, Gombe, Onitsha, Lagos) that are linked to the project communities.

- 9) Establishment of administrative and cooperative groups' operating offices for the youth agripreneurs in Maiduguri (northern Borno) and Biu (southern Borno) for sustainability beyond the project's life span.
- 10) Establishment of online networking platforms for business promotions and continuity.
- 11) Successful linkage with the Bank of Industry (BOI) for term loans under the Youth Empowerment Support (YES) program, and First City Monument Bank (FCMB) and Keystone Bank for special credit financing for the established grain processing mills for sustainability.
- 12) Established partnership with Olam Grains International and Keystone Bank for a special youth agripreneurs farm settlement scheme for agribusiness production activities at scale, as a critical exit strategy.

The critical message at this stage therefore, is that despite the difficult terrain of the project area, socioeconomic stressors of an economy in distress, with galloping inflationary trends and associated challenges of business neophytes (young entrepreneurs), we can conveniently assert at this point that there has been a steady progress in breaking the myth around the drudgery and perpetual poverty associated with agriculture among the younger generation.

Thus, 300 trained and empowered youth are currently employed in agricultural value chain business activities, with an average cost-benefit ratio (CBR) of 1:1.5; they are most importantly creating job opportunities for other young men and women in Borno State, Nigeria. Therefore, going at the current rate, by the grant end year of December 2018, it is envisaged that each of the empowered youth should on the average create job opportunities for at least 10 other youth/women, leading to and/or surpassing the set milestone of job opportunities in agribusiness for at least 2000 youth in Borno State.

Introduction

The assertions of the (Abuja) 2015, 2016, and 2017 country review and planning meetings with respect to coverage and resources invested in the Nigeria/Borno project clearly established the premium placed on youth agripreneurship activity as a key area of interest. This is understandably because of the pervasive youth restiveness and ongoing insurgency in the entire northeastern region of the country. The specific recommendation of the 2017 progress review meeting on the institutionalization and sustainability of project activities accordingly provides the background for this report, with a keen eye on key milestone and exit strategies.

The first project year (2014) was largely foundational with the training of 20 youth towards the end of the year (3–23 September 2014) as the main activity. Year 2015 was in the real sense the project establishment and pathfinding period when the youth agripreneurs trained in 2014 were retrained to write bankable/fundable business plans (28–30 July 2015); a second batch of 20 youth was also trained (7–17 September 2015) and jointly empowered to commence business activities. Year 2015 also witnessed the activation of several technical and professional partnerships in furtherance of project objectives. The partnerships include that of CropLife Africa Middle East, which culminated in the baseline assessment of the operations of contract sprayers in the project area in the last quarter of 2015.

Year 2016 consequently witnessed the following key activities also tailored towards goal attainment:

- 29 February–11 March 2016: 21 youth agripreneurs (Batch 3) trained at IITA Kano Station.
- 29 March–15 April 2016: 45 youth spray service providers (SSPs) (Batch 4) trained in collaboration with CropLife Africa Middle East at Biu and Kwaya Kusar, Borno State.
- 18–29 July 2016: 21 youth agripreneurs (Batch 5) trained at IITA Kano Station.
- October–December 2016: 87 trained youth agripreneurs jointly empowered with starter packs to commence business activities.

Year 2017 featured a unique partnership with Leventis Foundation Nigeria (LFN) which culminated in the training of 71 (Batch 6) youth agripreneurs in a vocational school training environment at Panda, Kano State and Tumu, Gombe State, Nigeria. This was closely followed by the training of 102 (Batch 7) contract SSPs in collaboration with a CropLife Africa Middle East member company, Harvestfield Nigeria Ltd. This was to specifically enhance doing business around the increasing tempo of cowpea cultivation in the project area and it essentially marked the end of all training activities, having reached and indeed surpassed the initial target of 200 youth agripreneurs by 50 percent.

Objectives

The study set out to undertake a quick assessment of business progress in alignment with key milestone from the results framework (Table 1) and the overall objectives of the youth activity. It was also to enhance a timely performance evaluation to further inform strategies for total delivery.

Jobs created include temporary and permanent jobs. Essentially most of the jobs are casual/temporary in nature at peak periods (land preparation, planting, harvesting, threshing, etc.) since the businesses are still in infancy. The permanent jobs created are in the grain legumes processing and livestock production value chain that are beginning to stabilize.

Lessons Learned

- 1) Understanding and appreciation of the principles of the agricultural value chain is important to the identification of viable agribusiness opportunities.
- 2) Provision of tangible starter packs soon after training is critical to business take-off, while access to finance/bank credit is important to growing the business.
- 3) Women are good entrepreneurs and enterprise leaders, if adequately mobilized.
- 4) Youth of nonagricultural background could be productive and earn a good income and livelihood in the sector, if properly trained and motivated.
- 5) Mind-set reorientation towards agriculture/agribusiness is important among the youth.
- 6) There is ample Research for Development (R4D) and Partnership for Development (P4D) opportunities within the scheme that can conveniently position the activity within the CGIAR system.
- 7) Effective targeting of participants is critical, to adequately take cognisance of inclusion error (defined as the proportion of participants that are not in the target population, e.g., are not youth, or youth that are already gainfully engaged), and exclusion error (defined as the proportion of the target population that are not benefitting from the program).
- 8) Concentration of business activities in the south and central senatorial zones of Borno State, to the detriment of the northern zone, indicating a substantial level and perception of insecurity in the north.
- 9) There is the need for caution in scaling out because of the lingering issue of insurgency, notwithstanding the position of the political leadership. The likelihood of risk occurrence is high.
- 10) The high level of infrastructural (roads, electricity, water, communication, etc.) deficit, persistent drought, and input/output market instability are great impediments to business development.
- 11) Critical success factors include location (rural-based agripreneurs), primordial attachment to farming & animal production, access to land, community support, and commitment, among others.

Sustainability Framework and Exit Strategies

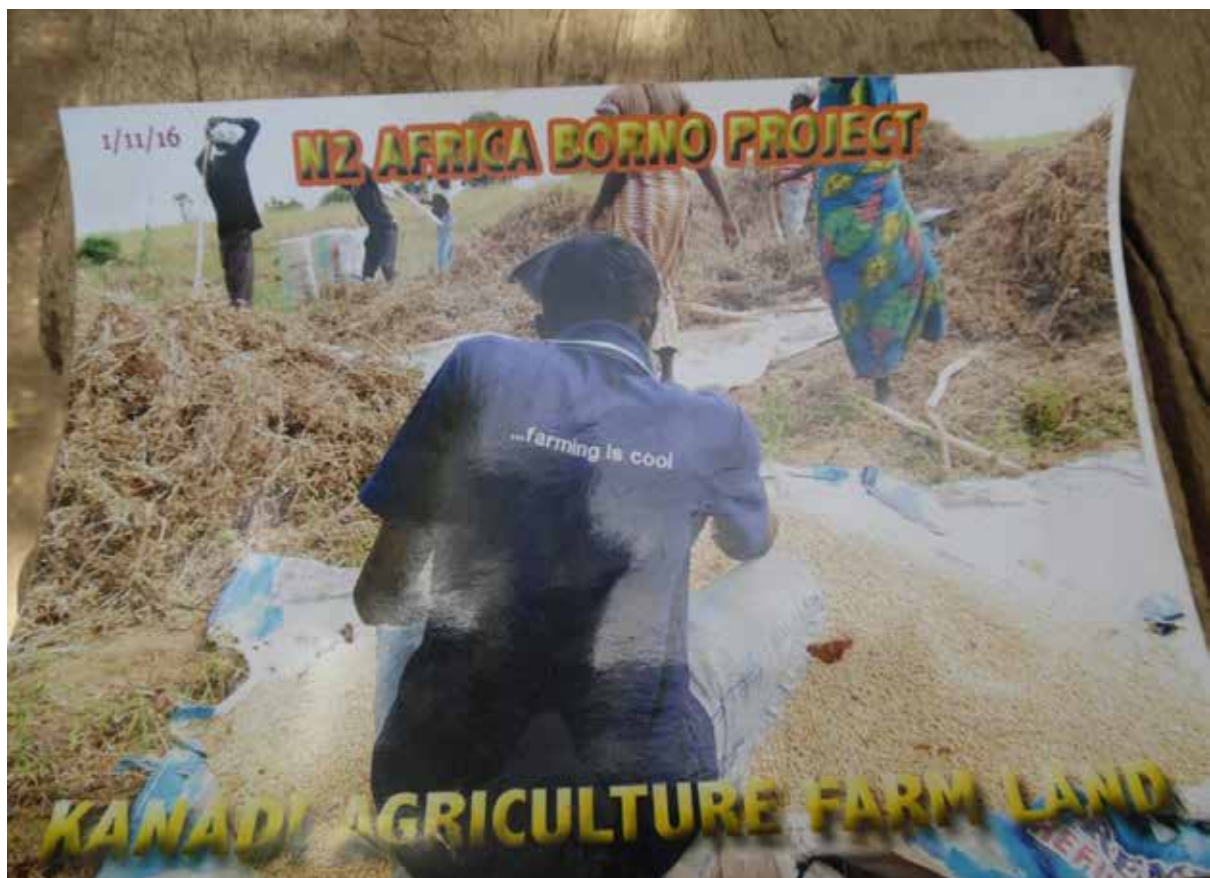

- Corporate Affairs Commission (CAC) certificate of business registration (CRBN) for all agripreneurs.
- Federal Ministry of Industry, Trade & Investment trademark approvals for food processing businesses (Hannbeyo Peanut, Wakawa Corn Vita, and Confiado Oil). This will enhance the acceptability, marketability, and profitability of the businesses.
- Registration of cooperative associations under the various value chain groups.
- Established networking platforms including:
 - n2africabornoyouthagripreneurs@googlegroups.com
 - n2africabornoyouths@googlegroups.com
 - <https://web.facebook.com/NtoAfricaBornoyouthagripreneurs>
 - N2Africa/IITA Batch 6 WhatsApp group
 - N2Africa/IITA grain legumes cooperative association WhatsApp group
- Established administrative offices in Biu (southern Borno) and Maiduguri (northern Borno).
- Facilitation of access to credit with the Bank of Industry (BOI) under the Youth Empowerment Support (YES) program, First City Monument Bank (FCMB), and Keystone Bank for special credit financing for the established grains processing mills for sustainability.
- Established partnership with Olam Grains International and Keystone Bank for a special Youth Agripreneurs' farm settlement scheme for agribusiness production activities at scale, as a critical exit strategy.

2018: The concluding project year is planned to focus on activity consolidation for sustainable exit. Activities in this phase of the scheme shall feature concrete monitoring and mentorship, internship/ad hoc retraining, cementing of partnership and mentorship platforms, perfection of sustainable linkages, and concrete business establishment with measurable and sustainable incomes.

Conclusion

Currently in Borno State, northeast Nigeria, notwithstanding the widespread national socioeconomic and political bottlenecks, evidence abounds to show that young men and women, on account of this intervention, are beginning to embrace agribusiness as an income-generating activity for a decent livelihood. Apart from the gradual success in breaking the myth around the drudgery and perpetual poverty associated with agriculture among the younger generation, 300 trained and empowered youth are currently employed in the agricultural value chain, with an average cost-benefit ratio (CBR) of 1:1.5, and are most importantly creating job opportunities for other young men and women in Borno State and environs.

The N2Africa Borno Youth Agripreneurship (BYAP) scheme is clearly an emerging testament to the fact that, with the right institutional support, training, mentorship, and funding, African youth population can be productively engaged in agricultural value chains toward sustainable livelihoods in agribusiness.
